Capital Spotlight: Webb Simpson

On May 13, 2018 Webb Simpson, class of 2004, won The Players Championship, which is considered the 5th Major of the year. Winning this tournament and overcoming some of the tour's best golfers propelled him to a spot among the top 8 golfers in the world according to the World Golf Rankings. When Simpson is not on the PGA tour, he is a true family man and a man of faith. Simpson grew up in Raleigh playing on the local courses and against local talent, like fellow PGA Tour member Brendon Todd who graduated from Green Hope High School in Cary. Todd was a three-time North Carolina 4A individual golf champion and provided stiff competition to Simpson as they were coming up through school.

At Wake Forest University Simpson went on to study Religion, which helped formalize his theological prowess. Known for quoting Bible verses on his Twitter feed, Simpson incorporates his faith into all he does. After his first PGA win in 2011 at the Wyndham Championship, he said "I'd be stupid not to thank my Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, because it was tough out there and I was nervous, and I felt His presence all day."

Simpson attended Wake Forest on the Arnold Palmer Scholarship and he was a three-time All-American and ACC Player of the Year in 2008. He played on the victorious 2007 Walker Cup team and the 2007 Palmer Cup team. He later went pro and played on both the Nationwide and PGA tours. His first PGA Tour win came in 2011 at the Wyndham Championship, and his biggest win to date came at the U.S. Open in 2012. In 2011 he set a PGA Tour record for the largest single season earnings increase when he went from $972,962 in 2010 to $6,683,214, an increase of $5,374,391.

Webb Simpson

When he is not tearing up the links, Webb lives in Charlotte with his wife, Dowd, and their 4 children. Simpson also finds time between family and the Tour to give back to the community. In 2010 he started a junior golf tournament named the Webb Simpson Challenge with friend and current director Mark Bentley. The tournament blends two of Webb's favorite things, golf and faith. Let's give Webb Simpson a Capital cheer and wish him well in his career.

What's On Your Bucket List?

One of our readers suggested this idea for a new column, and we thought it was a great idea. Send in anything you are doing or want to do related to your bucket list or somebody else's. Did you finally mark something off your list? Did you help somebody else do something they always wanted to do? Please share your story. Enjoy our first submission from Carla Holland Gardner (Class of '70).

Hallelujah! I am retired. Now I can go outside and play! When I saw Allen de Hart (in his eighties) walking across North Carolina on Exploring NC, I thought, "I can still walk." Running went away after fifty and Lyme disease took lots of my yoga moves, but I walk 3 miles on the beach almost every day. Since 3 miles X 365 days = 1095 miles/year, about the length of the Mountain to Sea Trail, I naively thought, "I can do this." It was so much harder than that!

The first challenge was finding someone to hike with me. Arthritis stopped my husband, but 25 other friends and family members went as well. Janie Jones (Class of '70) was one of the first people to join me. My brother, Roger Holland

(Class of '73), and I hiked over 500 miles together. Shauna, my daughter-in-law's sister, said it was the best therapy for a rough time she was going through, so she did 400 miles. The grandkids saw our great state.

We segment-hiked for about 10 days at a stretch. In between, I was granny-nanny back home. The whole trek took a year. This granny in sneakers carried a backpack all day in the rain and slept on the mountain forest floor in 49 degree weather! That night I think I accidentally scared off a bear by getting out of my bivy and standing up. I slept in my Prius for 30 nights. We had to postpone Clingman's Dome because Craggy Gardens in the mountains sent me home with skinned elbows, knees and forearms. The more we hiked, the healthier we got. The diversity of NC is awe inspiring, having the ecosystems of Florida to Maine in one state. Seeing how North Carolinians make a living, where they live, and meeting so many interesting people was humbling. Try it! <https://mountainstoseatrail.org>

Capital Spotlight: William Rowland

We have Featured William "Bill" Rowland in several issues of our newsletter over the years, and this edition finds a new honor bestowed upon Bill. He was inducted into the 46th Annual George Whitfield's Baseball Clinic Hall of Fame in January, 2018 in a ceremony held at Wayne Community College. "Bill is from my hometown, Kinston, and he has had a wonderful career," said George Whitfield, director of the clinic.

Far right, Bill Rowland, Professional Skater/Instructor

"I felt he deserved to be in there for all he has done. It is so much I can't even tell you. With what he has done in life, it has got to give people inspiration."

Bill left Broughton in 1945 and later achieved his G.E.D. from Broughton while stationed in Quantico, VA in August 1947. After an honorable discharge from the U.S. Navy in December 1947, Rowland enrolled at East Carolina Teaching College. From there, on to a long career at DuPont as an engineer and consultant. Since retiring, Bill has been a noted historian, author and a HAM radio operator. His historical writings and photos have helped enhance the general knowledge of CSS Neuse fund conservation efforts, and our past articles about him highlighted his many accolades. However, most readers may not know that Rowland has some lesser known talents in his past. Bill showed the folks in Kinston, North Carolina as a professional roller-skater and instructor in 1961. We have the picture to prove it. After retirement, Rowland appeared in 10 movies, including My Summer Story starring Charles Grodin and Kieran Culkin. Bill also stays active in his free time by walking regularly.

In 2017 Rowland completed his 6,000th mile in 6 years at the Minges Wellness Center. Way to go Bill!

Teacher of the Year Brings Professional Talent to Broughton

Broughton dance director and 2017 Wake County Teach of the Year, Betsy Graves, coordinated the effort to bring seven artists to the school in February for 26 master classes that gave students the chance to learn new moves and training techniques.

Many of the visiting dancers and instructors were local, but Lauren Yalango-Grant and Christopher Grant, a married dance team from New York City, took on the special role of “dancers in residence,” spending two and a half days instructing students onsite. The couple is well known for their work in Apple’s 2017 holiday ad.

The visiting couple said they typically work with professional dancers instead of younger students, and found working with the students exciting. “They are a joy because of their openness and vulnerability and eagerness,” said Yalango-Grant. “Our classes offer community building and support, which is important not just as dancers, but as humans.

Hannah Schafer, a Broughton senior who plans to study dance in college, said the classes helped her work on strengthening her body and gave her ideas for spring concert auditions.

Schafer’s partner for much of Thursday’s class was fellow senior Katherine Champion, who plans to study dance education at Meredith College. Champion said all of the teachers that week pushed personal growth. “In the partnering class, we could focus on core strength and art while working with someone else,” Champion said.

Graves paid for the event partly through a foundation grant through the school, and the rest was paid for with proceeds from a dance-a-thon fundraiser put on by the dance students.

Yalango-Grant was impressed with Graves and the work she’s doing at Broughton.

“These kids are very lucky to have her,” she said. “It’s amazing what she has been able to do here, in a public school.”

Reunion ReCAP: 1997 – 20th Reunion

The Class of 1997 celebrated our 20th reunion October 20 - 21, 2017. The festivities kicked off Friday with an informal gathering at the Oak and Dagger Pub in Seaboard Station. The free event, open for anyone to attend, had a good turnout and helped to set the stage for the rest of the weekend. Saturday morning the class held a bring-your-own-lunch picnic at Fred Fletcher Park where alumni and their families enjoyed the beautiful weather and plenty of celebratory cake. The highlight for many of the attendees (especially the little ones) was the guest appearance of the CAPS Crazy mascot, who looked quite different than he did twenty years ago! After the picnic, folks were invited to meet at the Holliday Gymnasium for a school tour. Vice Principal Mike Lentz could not have been more gracious in helping us organize the tours. Our classmates were also excited to hear from Coach

Spain, who greeted the group in the newly renovated gymnasium. Our gratitude extends to the student volunteers who gave their time to come to school on a Saturday afternoon to help us with the tours. What a walk down memory lane!

The weekend culminated with a ticketed event held Saturday night at the Junction Salon and Bar in the historic Depot in downtown Raleigh. Our classmates enjoyed food and drinks and danced to a DJ who played a great round-up of 90's music. We were especially grateful to our talented classmate, Lawrence Gillen, who really gave us memories for years to come by taking such wonderful photographs and even setting up a "selfie station." The photos included here are his handiwork. All who attended had a great time catching up, and some of us were even discussing the next reunion in five years!

Reunion ReCAP: 2007 – 10th Reunion

On the Friday after Thanksgiving, 2017, the Class of 2007 celebrated 10 years since our Broughton graduation with a lively gathering at Lucky B's in Downtown Raleigh's Glenwood South district. Thanks to the steadfast outreach efforts of a devoted class reunion committee, well over a hundred Caps attended the reunion - fending off Black Friday shopping temptations and lingering tryptophan side effects. The diverse Class of 2007 alumni include teachers, architects, marine researchers, mixologists, designers, and military service members - not to mention proud parents. We were especially excited to see a few of the many Broughton teachers who shaped our high school journeys: Dave Corsetti, Richard Matkins, and Caron Register.

The Class of 2007 is grateful to Anthony Battaglia, the owner of Lucky B's, for offering the space free of charge, which enabled an inclusive, cost-free reunion. Will Clayton, Jack Neese, Shircola Powell, Sarah Jane Simpson, Laura Stidham and Molly Wilkins served as planning subcommittee co-chairs, and their efforts are much appreciated.

Caps bring home another golf championship

Broughton rallied on Day 2 of the N.C. High School Athletic Association 4A boys golf championships, held at Pinehurst No. 6 on May 8, overcoming a four-stroke deficit to win its 12th state title.

The Capitals' two-day score of 601 edged two Charlotte schools: Myers Park (604) and Day 1 leader Ardrey Kell (609).

Broughton was led by Peter Fountain, who nearly claimed the individual title, falling in a playoff hole with defending champion A.J. Beechler of Pinecrest.

Broughton's Patrick Carlin was 10th (3-over) and Biggs Hawley (T16th, 8-over) to give the Caps the team title. Connor Jones (T24th) and Britt Stroud (T49th) also contributed.

Broughton's Peter Fountain tees off during the NCHSAA 4A State Championship for boys golf at Pinehurst

Three-time defending champion Pinecrest, which had won the Midwest regional last week, was fifth in the final team standings. Symon Balbin, who, like teammate Attie Giles, was one stroke behind a three-way for first in last week's Midwest regional, finished tied for seventh (4-over).

The last seven 4A titles have been won by either Pinecrest or Broughton. Broughton last won the title in 2014.

Broughton Teacher Wins Big on Jeopardy!

One of Broughton's teaching staff had a great run on Jeopardy! in January of 2018. Lee Quinn became a two day champion on one of America's favorite game shows with $44,800 in winnings. Quinn has spent his entire education career at Broughton, where he co-coordinates the International Baccalaureate program and teaches a course called the Theory of Knowledge.

Broughton teacher Lee Quinn with Alex Trebek

On Wednesday, January 17, Quinn swept categories on banner years and presidential burial sites, and he correctly answered the final Jeopardy! question: "A 1954 Act amended a 1938 one by striking out this word and replacing it with 'Veterans.'" (What is Armistice?)

He led both rounds Thursday and got the final Jeopardy! correct: "The name of this cracker that's been around since 1903 suggests that it was baked three times." (What is Triscuit?)

On Friday the 19th, Quinn was nearly tied with another contestant at the halfway point only leading by $100. At Final Jeopardy, he trailed by $1500. He answered the final question correctly, but failed to bet enough to prevail in the final tally: "It's the only world capital whose name is derived from an Algonquin word." (What is Ottawa?)

Quinn's journey to Jeopardy! has lasted more than two years. He took an online test – open to anyone 18 and older – and was selected to take an in-person test in Atlanta in June 2015.

He had to take another written test, sit for an interview and play the game with two other people.

Quinn has heard from former students, the man who mentored him when he was a student teacher at Orange High School in Hillsborough and – in the most unusual turn – a former colleague and trivia team partner whose daughter was competing on Jeopardy! at the same time.

Congratulations to Mr. Quinn!

Cap Hoops Standouts Find Success at the Next Level

Broughton's men's basketball program has produced a long history of storied hardcourt players, and a pair of recent graduates are carrying on the tradition of Caps' hoops excellence. Devonté Graham and Jerome Robinson played basketball together at Broughton during their amazing run to the state finals in 2013 where the Capitals lost a heartbreaker to Charlotte Olympic. Robinson went on to finish his high school career at Broughton, but Graham transferred the following year to Brewster Academy in New Hampshire where he helped the team win the national prep school championship. Both Robinson and Graham have gone on to have successful careers at the college level, Boston College and Kansas, respectively.

Robinson finished the 2017-2018 season an All-ACC honorable mention selection having started all 32 games. He averaged 18.7 points, 3.9 rebounds and 3.4 assists per game for the season, and ranked third in the ACC in steals and fourth in scoring. He scored in double figures 27 times and reached 20 points 17 different times, which led the ACC. Robinson led the Boston College Eagles in scoring, assists, free throws made and attempted, field goals and steals. Recently, he declared for the NBA draft this year.

In his senior season of 2017-18, Devonte' Graham was named the preseason Big 12 Player of the Year for the 2017-18 season. Graham would go on to be unanimously selected as the Big 12 Player of the Year, averaging 17.6 points and 7.2 assists per game as a senior. He was also named a consensus member of the All-American First-Team by multiple organizations. In previous seasons, Graham was named to the 2016 Big 12 All-Defensive Team, MVP of the 2016 Big 12 Men's Basketball Tournament and the Second Team All-Big 12 (2016-2017).

Both Jerome Robinson and Devonte' Graham have worn Broughton's purple and gold and carried their success on local courts into college careers and probably onto the NBA. The rest of the Capital Nation wishes them well on their future endeavors.

Capital Spotlight: Doctor Robert Bashford

Class of 1963 member, North Carolina State University and University of North Carolina Medical School alumnae, Doctor Robert Bashford, has held a number of positions over the years: OB-GYN, psychiatrist and dean of admissions at the UNC School of Medicine. In his latest endeavor as the assistant dean of the school's Rural Initiative Program, he focuses his time on recruiting doctors to practice in rural North Carolina.

Doctor Robert Bashford

In 2012 the William R. Kenan Jr. Charitable Trust asked the question "What if we put a significant amount of money in med students' hands through debt forgiveness with the promise that they would go into under-served rural North Carolina and provide care?" The answer is the program for which Dr. Bashford is now the assistant dean. The program focuses on bringing medical assistance to rural, under-served regions of the state. The program works with the Office of Rural Health, the N.C. Medical Society and the N.C. Farm Bureau to help doctors provide obstetrics, psychiatry, general surgery, family medicine and internal medicine in areas where there is need and the new doctors are welcome.

Through much of Dr. Bashford's career he has worked at UNC, but yet he remains a diehard NC State fan. In fact, the James B. Hunt Library at NC State named a book-finding robot after Dr. Bashford. Born in Raleigh and attending Broughton, Dr. Bashford found a love for the area and the state that continues to guide him as he helps bring healthcare to the whole state.

Caps from the Past – 1991

We strap ourselves in for a short ride in our wayback machine to the year of 1991. There were a couple of nefarious types flying under the radar in 1991, but we would come to hear all about their deeds in later years. Lance Armstrong became the U.S. National Amateur Triathlon Champion, and an investigating body found no legal basis for restricting Bernie Madoff's "Pay for Order Flow" business model.

1991 was the year Congress authorized the use of force to expel Iraq from Kuwait. The votes were 52-47 in the US Senate and 250-183 in the US House of Representatives. These were the closest margins in authorizing force by the Congress since the War of 1812. The successful operations Desert Storm and Desert Shield ensued. Video game pop culture lodged two of its most iconic events, the Super Nintendo is released for home gamers in North America and Street Fighter II is released in arcades. Dances with Wolves wins the

Also this same year, Tim Berners-Lee, a scientist working at the CERN high-energy physics lab in Geneva introduced the World Wide Web with a small post on a newsgroup with instructions on how to download the first web browser. The world has not quite been the same since. In sports, the Giants beat the Bills in Super Bowl XXV, the Twins won the World Series, Duke beat Kansas to win the NCAA Basketball Championship and Magic Johnson announced he was HIV positive. It was a busy year, so let's take a look at some pictures from the Latipac from 1991.

Student designers' clothes hit the runway

The future of fashion took the runway at Lucky Tree Gallery in Raleigh during the Artistic Aspirations Fashion Show on March 9.

With garments by budding fashion designers from Broughton High School, the show featured four collections that included dresses, separates and more. The show was conceived and produced by students in the school's fashion classes. Proceeds from the show benefited Fashion Revolution, a movement calling for greater transparency, sustainability and ethics in the fashion industry.

Exploring Local Lore: Isaac Hunter's Tavern

By Kerri Habben

If you drive in North Raleigh, it is likely that you have waited in traffic along Wake Forest Road approaching the North Raleigh Hilton. Recent articles about further development in that area and ensuing interest in Isaac Hunter compel me to contemplate. The last remaining building of his tavern was torn down when the current hotel was built. There was also an old well on the site which was used for over two hundred years.

People, for all of the exterior changes around us, are very much the same as those who lived two hundred years ago or more. If only in being human beings who require food and shelter, who fail and achieve, who grieve and rejoice.

If we were to travel back in time to when Isaac Hunter first owned land in 1761, we would be in Johnston County. The new county of Wake would not arrive until 1771. Hunter's tavern was one of many that served weary travelers along the major North-South route that ran from Petersburg, Virginia to South Carolina. It was set slightly to the east. The name Wake Forest was decades away.

For a bit of perspective, consider the pace of travel in Hunter's era. The stagecoach departed three times a week from Petersburg at 3 a.m. and arrived in Warrenton, NC at 8 p.m. after 17 hours of travel on a rutted, dirt road. The coach then left Warrenton at 3 a.m. due to be in Raleigh at 6 p.m. the same day, which made it a 15 hour passage for the 55 miles between the two towns.

When Hunter first operated his tavern in the late 1760's Raleigh wasn't here yet. We would be born in 1792 after a long gestation period. It is because of a seemingly obscure decision during the convention of 1788 in Hillsborough that Hunter's tavern is even remembered. It was declared that the seat of government would be within ten miles of Isaac Hunter's tavern. It has been suggested that this was due to a particular alcoholic beverage he served. However, the decision also sent a message to existing cities. A new metropolis would become the capitol city of North Carolina.

Hunter also happened to have a horse race track on his property. Gentlemen visiting the future site of Raleigh could ride a reasonable distance to stake a bit of their fortunes and also hunt an abundance of quail and deer. Perhaps these additional amenities cast some influence upon them.

We know very little and yet enough to tell a story of Isaac Hunter. He was born in 1745 and at 16 years of age was given 584 acres of land by his father, Theophilus Hunter, Sr. This tract had been granted to his father by the Earl of Granville. His brother, Theophilus Hunter, Jr., also owned land, part of which we know today as the newly minted Dix Park. Isaac Hunter continued to acquire large tracts of land around Crabtree Creek, ultimately owning 7,135 acres. With 640 acres in a square mile that equals to approximately 11 square miles.

He built the first mill in 1777 at what is now Lassiter Mill Park, then called the Great Falls of Crabtree. He also first built a mill where one would later be called Whitaker Mill. This is perhaps the southern boundary of his property. With a bit of research, as well as considering street names, local parks, and lost landmarks, I believe his full acreage was once bounded to the North by Northridge Road off Hunting Ridge Road (think deer), then to the East by present-day Spring Forest Road. Consider Quail Corners Shopping Center where Hunter and 20 relatives were buried before being moved to Oakwood Cemetery when the area was developed. Nearby is Quail Hollow. Eastgate Park may have been aptly named.

I am not certain of the western border. Six Forks was once Oxford Road and differently aligned. However, when I draw a circle around my assumed parameters, there are about 1 1 square miles within it.

Hunter was possibly married two or three times, and also may have outlived all but three of his 13 children. He died on March 18, 1823. The immense amount of land he once owned had either been given away or sold to ease his debts. Life is indeed awash in irony. Our moment in time, two centuries removed from theirs, is yet lived one deep breath, one steady, hopeful heartbeat at a time.

Correction

One of our faithful readers pointed out that our editing staff misidentified a Cap in our "Caps from Past" article. We identified a photo as Tom Reynolds, but we actually showed Scott Hoch. Our humble apologies.

Alumni Decade Captains

Alumni Decade Captains were created to assist the class agents with their reunions. For each five-year period, one captain is designated as the liaison between the agents and the Association. Included in their duties are encouraging classes to have reunions, submitting scheduling, updates in planning and write-ups (including photos) of reunions held to the Association for inclusion in the semi-annual newsletters.

Below are the decade captains who have graciously volunteered to serve as liaisons to the Reunion Committee.

Contact your decade captain if you are unable to contact your class agent.
